Greatest Armada of RAF Planes Blasts Berlin

Fourth Devastating Attack by American Bombers on Elevis

Dozen Nazi Planes on Ground Targets; News of Italian Campaign

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Striking for the fourth successive day at German planes massed for a continued attack in the Aegean, American heavy and medium bombers virtually completed destruction of Elevis airfield at Athens yesterday and bombed another enemy air base at Larissa on the Greek east coast.

While a slight improvement of the weather permitted lively patrol activity and some artillery duelling on the Italian land front, flooded rivers still prevented large-scale action and deep mud still bogged down most of the heavy equipment of the Fifth and Eighth armies.

The fourth devastating attack on Elevis airfield in as many days was made by Flying Fortress which were shown in photographs to have destroyed or damaged more than a dozen enemy planes on the ground and left many fires burning.

The fortresses encountered heavy antiaircraft fire but only half a dozen fighters in the vicinity, and these were driven off by the P-38 escort.

Mitchell medium bombers, meanwhile, assailed the Larissa airfield on an important rail link between Athens and Salonika, and dumped tons of explosives on the Grosseto and Terni railroad yards north of Rome in Italy.

While Warhawks hammered shipping along the Yugoslav coast, sinking one steamer and damaging two others, light bombers and fighter-bombers took advantage of the improved weather to sweep along the front to attack motor convoys, particularly in the Ascoli and Aquila areas.

NAZIS TAKE ISLANDS

London, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The occupation of three more small islands in the Aegean—Icaria, Lipso and Patmos—was claimed by the Germans today as a sequel to the loss by the British of Leros in the stepping stone battle of the eastern Mediterranean.

The Berlin communique said Icaria, a small Greek island west of Samos and north of the Italian Dodecanese group, was garrisoned by Italians and that light German naval forces took 240 prisoners and seized a quantity of arms.

An undisclosed number of prisoners also were seized in Lipso and Patmos, small rocky isles north of Leros in the Dodecanese. The broadcast said these also were garrisoned by Italians.

Allied announcements never previously had claimed the occupation of these islands, although German broadcasts had mentioned German attacks on Icaria.

Meanwhile the Germans were reported pressing fresh aerial attacks on Samos, only island in the Aegean, which the allies are officially reported to be holding. Castellorosso, easternmost of the Dodecanese, is believed still in the hands of the British, however.

The German radio today said the British Leros garrison had withdrawn to Samos, although previous German official announcements declared 3,000 British and 5,000 Italian troops had been captured on Leros. The British have announced simply that resistance on Leros had ceased.

ESTIMATE NAZI FORCE

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 19.—(AP)—German divisions operating in Italy and southern Europe were estimated today at approximately 50, 10 of them facing the Fifth and Eighth armies in southern Italy.

All available information, however, suggests that Hitler is being forced to drain the German manpower barrel to keep his armies intact and that equipment is scarce for new divisions or replacements.

The three infantry divisions—the 94th, 305th and 65th—thrown against the Americans and British recently, all use mules and horses for transport and all contain many inexperienced men. In addition, the 65th division has only two rifle regiments instead of the usual three.

All the divisions facing the allies are said to be under strength.

Amphibious Drive to Sever Japan's Empire Presaged

(By The Associated Press)

Allied forces in the Pacific are speeding up their offensives—by land in New Guinea, by sea in the Solomons and by air in the mid-Pacific.

Army planes, operating from Central Pacific bases, raided the Marshall and Gilbert islands, presaging the opening of an amphibious offensive intended to cut in half Japan's stolen island empire.

The 7th Air Force planes returned without loss from their raids on Jaluit island in the Marshalls and Tarawa airfield in the Gilberts—both repeat performances. They encountered air opposition for the first time. The enemy retaliated by raiding Funafuti in the Ellice islands, presumably the American base, killing two men and damaging a few planes.

Compliment

With U. S. Forces on Bougainville, Solomons, Nov. 17.—(Delayed)—(AP)—A captured Japanese infantry officer paid this left handed compliment to the American Marines:

"Marines are not such good jungle fighters. But the trouble is the Marines tear down the jungle. After a while there is no jungle left to fight in."

In the northern Solomons, a naval task force shelled enemy airfields on Buka for 45 minutes in its second raid within a month on the island, less than 200 miles from the Japs' once strong fortress of Rabaul, New Britain.

Australians Advance

On New Guinea, where warfare has been confined for weeks to aerial raiding, land fighting burst forth again with Australians advancing from Finschhafen to attack strong Japanese forces who still challenged allied dominance of Huon peninsula, springboard for an invasion of New Britain.

Bombers again raided Rabaul while divebombers supported allied ground forces on New Guinea and Bougainville island in the Solomons. Marines on Bougainville, who have killed eight Japanese for every Marine lost, were steadily enlarging their beachhead. Divebombers attacked the scene of intense fighting.

Stop Priorities

Chicago, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Herman, who can't talk or write, but who is the bearer of important scientific research material, was going to fly to Baltimore today with a top priority. Herman is a rabbit.

He will sit next to the pilot on the 5-hour trip in a special crate, to safeguard his health. He is being sent to Johns Hopkins University by Michael Reese hospital, because he has been injected with brown Pearce carcinoma, a non-communicable type of cancer. Johns Hopkins is doing research on the disease.

Rabbits injected with cancer "are not particularly robust," hospital authorities here said, and any slow means of transportation would be hard on them. If the rabbit arrived dead, he would be of no value to research. Thus the plane ride—and the scientists are hoping Herman is a tough bunny.

Dixon Soldier, Awarded Air Medal For Achievements, Reported Missing

Mrs. Marguerite Woodyatt, 803 Monroe avenue, last evening received a telegram from her husband, Staff Sgt. Robert E. Woodyatt, 26, has been reported missing in action since Nov. 5, in the Europe theater of operations.

Sgt. Woodyatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. George (Bob) Woodyatt, 812 Chamberlain street, is reported to have been among 8th air force members to have been decorated for valor and exceptional achievement. The Dixon flier was awarded the air medal for exceptional achievement in aerial flight.

Nov. 5, the day on which he was reported missing, was marked by the raids on Muenster and Gelsenkirchen, Germany, in which 10 heavy and two medium bombers and five fighters were reported lost.

Another Date With Revenue Collector Awaits Taxpayers

Many to Get Advance Notice from Uncle Sam; Reminder

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Robert E. Hannegan, internal revenue commissioner, issued a reminder to taxpayers today that several million still have another date with him before year's end.

Many will receive advance notice in the form of a bill, but the remainder must decide for themselves whether they are required to file either an original or amended "declaration of estimated income and Victory tax" before the December 15 deadline.

In general the latter are:

1. Farmers who took advantage of the additional three months granted them under the pay-as-you-go tax act.

2. Persons who discovered that they underestimated their tax by more than the allowable 20 per cent in filing September 15 declarations.

3. Those who did not file in September because their estimated income then was insufficient to require a declaration but who now find:

- (a) Their incomes will be above levels covered by the withholding levy ($2,700 of single and $3,500 if married);

- (b) They will have more than $100 gross income from a source not subject to withholding, such as dividends or wages earned as a farm laborer or domestic servant, and total income sufficient to require a tax return ($500 for a single person, $1,200 for a married couple or $624 for an individual married person, or

- (c) They were required to file an income tax return for 1942 and now expect their 1943 earnings to be less than last year's.

Hannegan said taxpayers who filed September 15 declarations and paid only half the estimated tax still due will receive bills for

Stop Over Station—Will Open Saturday

Members of the Dixon Service Mother's organization have been working day and night, with many of the members husbands cooperating, in completing plans for the formal opening of the Stop Over station in the Grow building at River street and Galena avenue. Their efforts have been highly successful and the station will open Saturday morning at 7:30 and remain open until 12:30 Sunday morning for the reception of any service men and women stopping in the city.

The response for donations has far exceeded the expectations of the committee in charge of the station. Several organizations have volunteered cash donations, some have promised monthly allotments to be used at the discretion of the committee and numerous groups and individuals have volunteered to furnish cookies, cake and coffee.

Numerous articles of furniture have been delivered to the center and the mothers of Dixon service men and women were today adding the finishing touches to the rooms which will house the Stop Over station, where men and women in any branch of service will be entertained without being charged for any article.

Today in Washington

A Roundup of Developments From the Nation's Capital

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The Army's disclosure that it has more money than it needs touched off today a series of developments and comments that gave an entirely new complexion to the nation's war production effort to date, and what's needed in the future.

Out of the announcement that the war department is turning back $13,000,000,000 to the budget bureau, came these significant turns:

- 1.—The Army was pictured as considering the mighty production effort at its expansion peak. Some drastic cutbacks, notably in small arms ammunition, already have been made because enough material is on hand or because battle experience has dictated shifts.

- 2.—The Army's manpower needs have been revised downward by more than a half million men and, so, opponents of the father draft in congress promptly seized upon this as another argument for their point.

3. It was disclosed that preliminary steps already are under consideration for government and industry to work out tentative plans to reconvert war factories to peacetime production. Some officials said this would have been done before but there was a fear of giving the impression the war was won and thus engendering a letdown.

Brings New Demands

Announcement of the giant refund was made by Chairman Snyder (D-Pa.) of an appropriations sub-committee that handles army finances. It immediately brought demands on Capitol Hill for lower taxes, closer scrutiny of federal expenditures and a stop to the father draft.

While the Pennsylvania observer that the "welcome news to all of us who are disturbed over the mounting public debt... has no immediate bearing upon the need to raise additional revenue," Senator Downey (D-Calif.) declared that increased taxation might be partially avoided by the Army curtailment.

Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the house military committee construed the Snyder disclosure as "additional evidence that there no longer is a need for drafting pre-war fathers."

"The original Army appropriation for this year was based on estimates of total manpower of 8,200,000," May said in an interview. "The admission that a reduction in funds is now in order because of downward revisions in manpower needs indicates to me that we don't need pre-Pearl Harbor fathers."

May said he intended to call before his committee probably next week Major General Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, to detail plans for administering new father-deferment legislation passed yesterday by the house and slated for senate action next Monday. The legislation puts pre-war fathers at the bottom of the draft list and permits their induction only after the nationwide pool of available non-fathers has been exhausted.

Statement "Amazing"

Describing Snyder's statement as "amazing," Rep. Knutson (R-Minn.), ranking minority member of the ways and means committee, said "it would be interesting to know how much congress has over-appropriated for the Navy, the Maritime Commission and other spending agencies."

The Snyder announcement, coupled with a recent series of ordinance plant shutdowns, suggested that even more extensive reductions in war production are in prospect.

The war department savings to

Ludwigshafen and Targets in Western Germany Also Suffer

Two and Four-Ton Block-Busters Dropped on Capital of Reich

London, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The greatest armada of RAF heavy bombers ever dispatched to Germany blasted Berlin and Ludwigshafen last night, and today U. S. Flying Fortresses with fighter support attacked western Germany.

The fortress targets were not specified in the first announcement.

At least 700 heavy bombers and perhaps a full thousand took part in the night RAF attacks.

Two and four-ton blockbusters were among the explosives hurled on Berlin and Ludwigshafen.

Incendiary bombs and high explosives dumped on the German capital started large fires whose reflection lit up the skies, although cloud formations prevented immediate observation of the results of the first heavy raid there since Sept. 3.

The exact number of bombers participating in the tremendous dual blow was not made known, but between 700 and 800 heavy bombers participated in some of the raids that leveled Hamburg and the Air Ministry announcement said last night's total topped all previous assaults.

87th Attack on Berlin

The announcement indicated that the main strength of the night formations struck Berlin, the 87th attack by the British on that city since the war began.

Clearer weather prevailed over Ludwigshafen—home of the world's largest chemical works—and the second straight night assault on that industrial city resulted in very large explosions.

The twin mission cost the RAF 32 bombers.

Reports reaching Stockholm said the Berlin attack had been directed chiefly against the city's outskirts, where the bulk of the capital's great industries are located.

Since the last raid on the city the RAF's record bombing concentration has been upped from 50 tons per minute to 74, greatly increasing the chance for an effective knockout campaign against the capital should the allied command decide to erase that most important objective in Europe.

Ludwigshafen Marked City

Last night's 62nd blow at Ludwigshafen, which also produces U-boat parts, tanks and other war essentials, almost certainly marks that city as being high on the allied list of targets to be eliminated.

Ludwigshafen's twin manufacturing city of Mannheim, which lies across the Rhine, was reported from Germany this week to have been 80 per cent knocked out.

The great E. G. Farben chemical works stretches for three miles along the banks of the Rhine, and in addition to turning out explosives it is also engaged in chemical research, possibly in a study of the "secret weapons" the nazis are seeking to turn the allied tide of victory.

On the basis of last night's attacks, two successive American daylight assaults on vital targets in Norway, and the RAF smash Wednesday night at Ludwigshafen, some London quarters promptly suggested that the allies may be opening the greatest bombing offensive ever attempted against Europe.

On Important Targets

Since the utter devastation of Hamburg early in August, Berlin has been bombed heavily three times—Aug. 23, when the RAF lost a record of 58 bombers; Aug. 31, when 47 were lost, and Sept. 3 when 22 were lost.

Meanwhile, the RAF has concentrated on important industrial targets—completing 80 per cent destruction of Kassel and Mannheim, according to a neutral report from Germany this week—and on supporting the Italian campaign with raids on Germany's supply lines.

U. S. Liberators, in an arduous 1,200-mile round trip yesterday, spread destruction through the Germans' biggest Norwegian airplane repair and maintenance depot at Kjeller, 11 miles outside Oslo. The operation followed by only 24 hours another American heavy bomber flight to Norway

Would Freeze Payroll Levies at 1 Per Cent

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Asserting that "we are not entitled to use social security taxes to finance any part of the war," Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) announced today he will seek to amend the new revenue bill, to freeze payroll levies at the present one per cent on employees and employers.

Vandenberg's action is expected to carry heavy weight with the senate, since he took the initiative in two previous moves which resulted in yearly postponements of an otherwise automatic advance to two per cent on employers and employees alike.

De Marigny's Entry to States Opposed

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Rep. Coffee (D-Wash.) said today he would oppose entry into the United States of Alfred De Marigny, acquitted at Nassau, Bahamas, last week of the murder of his multi-millionaire father-in-law, Sir Harry Oakes.

FACES PENALTY

Nassau, Bahamas, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Alfred De Marigny, who won acquittal last week of a murder charge, today drew a $420 fine—or a three-month prison sentence if he fails to pay it—for illegal possession of gasoline.

His close friend, Marquis Georges De Visselou, was fined the same amount and paid immediately, but De Marigny filed notice of appeal.

Magistrate F. E. Field said the only reason he did not sentence the two men to prison is because he might thus have delayed their deportation.

The jury which freed De Marigny of the charge that he murdered Sir Harry Oakes, his wealthy father-in-law, recommended that he be deported immediately. The gasoline figured in the murder trial, Banker John H. Anderson and De Visselou testified that they were asked by De Marigny to remove it from his premises just before his arrest.

Staff Sgt. Kreisch, Recent Prisoner of Italians, Is Home to See Parents

Staff Sgt. Michael Robert Kreisch, 27, Dixon soldier who was once reported missing in action in the Mediterranean theater of operations and later a prisoner of war, yesterday afternoon returned to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael S. Kreisch, 723 Broadway.

His lips sealed by orders not to discuss his experiences because it might have an adverse effect on other Americans who are prisoners of the axis, Sgt. Kreisch could only say that he was glad to be home and wished that his brother, Pvt. Donald Kreisch, 23, serving overseas with the army air forces, could be home so the family reunion would be complete.

The war department notified Sgt. Kreisch's parents March 11 that he was missing in action in the north African area and on March 25 they were advised that he was being held a prisoner by the Italians then a member of the axis.

Sgt. Kreisch and his brother entered in the air corps shortly after Pearl Harbor. They received basic training at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., and then were assigned to different camps for further training.

Sgt. Kreisch went overseas as a bombardier.

Before entering the service, the brothers were employed on construction work at the Medusa Cement plant.

Gomel's Fate Virtually Settled by Rechitsa's Fall to Russian Force

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Over-confident folk must have received the shock they deserve when they saw the badly mauled Hitlerites suddenly flare back with a heavy counter-attack on the southern flank of the sharp Zhitomir salient and force the Muscovites to withdraw somewhat.

Such a display of strength and morale, coming on top of the nazi recapture of Aegean islands and the difficulties encountered by the allies in Italy, certainly is disturbing to wishful thinking. Still, hope readers of this column hadn't misjudged the situation, because only last Tuesday I pointed out that the Germans were attacking to slow down the Red drive at Zhitomir, and added that "the ability of the Hitlerites to stage such counterthrusts should dispel any notion that they are crushed and routed army."

However, while this is a sharp reminder that the Germans still have much strength and are dangerous, it doesn't alter the fact that they are on the road to defeat. Such bursts of striking-power are purely defensive.

The Zhitomir salient show shouldn't be surprising. The surprising thing would have been if it hadn't come, for that would have supported the idea that the Hitlerites were indeed in a state of collapse.

Of course, their battle-front is in a precarious position—as witness today's reports of smashing Red victories at Korosten and in the Gomel sector—and under such circumstances they might be thrown into a debacle. But they haven't been in such a disorganized state yet.

It's almost a truism that any great army, fighting on a broad front, can always make a dent in the enemy line by a quick and heavy concentration of troops at a given point. The Germans are said to have employed 150,000 men on a narrow front below Zhitomir, and that's a lot of troops. The significant thing is that while the Red front bent, it held and surged back.

The German attack on the flank of the Zhitomir salient was calculated to give them time to withdraw.

Occupation of Korosten, important rail junction on the Leningrad Odessa and Kiev-Warsaw railroad, followed a two-day battle. Whole trainloads of German war stores were captured inside the city, which lies on the southern edge of the Pripiet marshes. An entire German regiment was reported annihilated in the battle.

In addition to cutting the last German north-south railway short at the Polish border by the capture of Korosten, Vatutin appeared to have anchored his right flank securely against the Pripiet marshes. He was thus able to concentrate strong forces on his left flank to meet the vicious German counterattacks in the area between Zhitomir and Fastov to the south.

Here, where soviet forces were forced into a slight retreat Wednesday, German drives yesterday were hurled back with heavy losses in men and tanks, the soviet communique said. Inside the Dnieper bend, still further to the south, the Russians said their troops killed 1,200 Germans in vicious see-saw fighting. Red army units were said to be within 22 miles of Nikopol in this sector.

Rechitsa fell after a bitter three-day battle. Here also, the fleeing enemy left behind tremendous amounts of war material.

Moscow, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Russian armies pushed forward toward old Poland today from their newly captured bases of Korosten and Rechitsa and brought German counterattacks to a standstill on the lower flank of the great Kiev bulge in the western Ukraine.

Capture of Gomel, White Russian rail center 25 miles east of Rechitsa, appeared near.

The Army newspaper Red Star said German forces which attacked three times in the Korosten sector, 20 miles east of Russian-held Zhitomir, with superior numbers of troops and tanks, had retreated under a hail of Russian artillery shells. Counterattacks in the Zhitomir sector also were repulsed. These were the areas where the Red army drew back Wednesday in its first retreat since mounting its summer offensive beyond Belgorod.

(The German communique said Russian attacks were on a reduced scale in the Dnieper bend and that German counterthrusts broke stiff resistance in the Kiev area, turning the Red army out of a number of localities. The Germans said bitter fighting continued in the Korosten and Rechitsa areas and their Paris radio asserted that the Kiev-Zhitomir railway had been cut by the nazis.)

Deep Wedge In Nazi Lines

Red Star said the possession of Korosten and Zhitomir gave the Russians a wedge deep in the German lines with full rail facilities for moving reserves and supplies. It was just a year ago today that the Red army launched its counter-offensive from Stalingrad. (In that year, the Russians had advanced 720 miles from Stalingrad to Korosten, more than half the distance to Berlin.)

The twin victories were proclaimed last night by Premier Joseph Stalin in orders of the day which eulogized Gen. Nikolai Vatutin, commander of the First Ukraine army, for the storming of Korosten and Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky for his success at Rechitsa.

Capture of Korosten, 60 miles from the old Polish border, effectively split the German forces in the Ukraine from those in White Russia. The fall of Rechitsa narrowed the last escape corridor open to the beleaguered Gomel garrison to less than 25 miles. The Gomel-Zhitomir rail line already was within the radius of soviet artillery.

Russian columns were reported converging on Gomel from the north and south and its fall appeared inevitable.

After Two-Day Battle

Occupation of Korosten, important rail junction on the Leningrad Odessa and Kiev-Warsaw railroad, followed a two-day battle. Whole trainloads of German war stores were captured inside the city, which lies on the southern edge of the Pripiet marshes. An entire German regiment was reported annihilated in the battle.

In addition to cutting the last German north-south railway short at the Polish border by the capture of Korosten, Vatutin appeared to have anchored his right flank securely against the Pripiet marshes. He was thus able to concentrate strong forces on his left flank to meet the vicious German counterattacks in the area between Zhitomir and Fastov to the south.

Red army units were said to be within 22 miles of Nikopol in this sector.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Ancient Laws Still Provide Sound

Principles for a Complex World

Texts: Exodus 20-15; Leviticus 19:11, 13; Luke 19:1-10, 45, 46

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

The blending of Old Testament and New Testament texts in the study material for this and other lessons of the present quarter is significant, and is not without an important basis in the appreciation of fundamental facts in the realm of human relations.

The Jewish law contained a great deal that many devout Jews no longer observe, and that Christians who gratefully recognize their great heritage from the Old Testament never have regarded as being binding upon the Christian conscience—matters of ritual observance and of formal injunctions, that may easily be distinguished from considerations of inherently moral value and of matters of essential justice, mercy, and gracious living between man and man.

Particularly we have reserved the Ten Commandments, but we have disregarded much that was fine and noble in Jewish provisions for the general welfare. In principle at least, and in whatever adaptation might be necessary, these ought to have an essential place in modern life—such provisions, for instance, as were embodied in the land laws, the Year of Jubilee, the cities of refuge, and other measures designed to prevent oppression and to promote humanitarian acts of justice, restoration, and recovery.

The Bible is still our greatest and finest text-book in matters pertaining to the welfare of society. The study of early Jewish society and the principles laid down for its protection and welfare, of which the Ten Commandments are a part, is valuable and enlightening because we see there laid bare, as we cannot always see them in our modern complex society, the basic facts of human existence, and the basic conditions that are necessary if man is to live on good terms with his fellows, and if there is to be a strong, well-ordered state in which just privileges and rights are to be maintained.

What we do not see as clearly as we ought to is that the complexities of society make no difference in the basic facts. The Jewish law-givers said that if any man sought to take what was not his, or tried to overreach or take unfair advantage of his fellows in a small, closely-knit community, the whole well-being of society was put out of adjustment. In a well-ordered society each man must bear his fair share of responsibility, and must not seek, to the disadvantage of others, that to which he is not justly entitled.

So the law-givers said: "Thou shalt not steal. The Commandment is not less exacting today, but even more so, under conditions in which the opportunities for stealing are immensely increased, and stealing is possible on a vast scale never contemplated when this Commandment was written. Both Old and New Testament writers recognized, and emphasized, the fact that stealing is not just a matter of cracking a safe, or of taking something out of somebody's pocket. "Ye shall not deal falsely, nor be to one another a thief."

A man is a thief, actually in the sight of God, and socially in relation to his fellow men when either illegally, or by the subterfuge of unjust laws, or by unfair trade practices, he seeks to get what is not rightly his.

ORSON WELLES MAY GIVE UP ACTING

Orson Welles, who is a former resident of Grand Detour, said recently that he was considering giving up his job as an actor to devote all his time to the Free World organization. Welles addressed a group of labor leaders at a closed meeting in the Palmer House, called under auspices of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. He said the Free World association was formed in New York in April, 1941, with the purpose of building an association of nations equipped with power to insure justice and peace to all peoples. Welles said the association is backed by a $700,000 fund sponsored by Sidney Hillman, New York CIO leader. The actor told the labor leaders there is danger of a Fascist revolution in this country, and said even now there is an "enormous plot, called free enterprise," against freedom.

A Thought for Today

For the Lord God will help me; therefore shall I not be confounded; therefore have I set my face like a flint, and I know that I shall not be ashamed.—Isaiah 50:7.

Shame is an ornament to the young a disgrace to the old.—Aristotle.

Standing Room Only!

We have been reading the description of a press conference held by the president.

The writer called attention to the fact that the reporters are herded into an ante room where they are compelled to stand and wait until the executive happens to notice that it is time for the conference. Then they are herded into the oval study where they are kept standing until the thing is over.

By this time they may have bunnions. For 25 cents or so a motion picture manager will provide plush upholstered seats for a citizen while he watches a program that may be infinitely more entertaining, and sometimes more enlightening and inspiring, than a presidential press conference.

In ancient days subjects had to approach the king on hands and knees and touch the floor with forehead. As kings lost some of their horsepower the subject was permitted to walk in, but he had to walk out backwards. Later on some of the kings lost a little more amperage and many a subject could walk in, shake hands, and say "Hi, yer majesty." Benjamin Franklin, on an errand abroad, blew a fuse when told he would have to take off his hat before the king. He kept on his hat, and there is no record of the imperial highness getting a short circuit as result of Ben's audacity.

But American newspaper reporters still have to stand in the presence of the president, no matter whether the president is Democratic, Republican or New Deal. It is not democratic.

We suggest that plush seats be provided for the reporters while listening to presidents. During the period of waiting, while the executive is thinking up answers for the questions he knows are sure to be asked, we suggest that the reporters be provided with pingpong and billiard tables or checkersboards. And there could be soda pop on a sideboard and smorgasbord, with jars of bicarbonate of soda and aspirin tablets. And if the waiting period proved unusually long and any reporter couldn't control his thirst, sofas could be provided, or a table to fall under.

American presidents never have appreciated the fact that what they say at conferences goes to millions of readers and influences them to vote the right ticket. They have considered the press conference a deuced nuisance. In reality, it is an opportunity.

When Is a Mess?

In the first of three recent articles from Washington on the tire situation, Peter Edson stated that Col. Bradley Dewey, the new rubber director, had "inherited a mess." Mr. Edson went on to adduce evidence that amply justified that statement. The counsel of a senate subcommittee investigating the synthetic rubber program confronted Colonel Dewey with this statement, and the colonel denied it. But Mr. Edson's evidence remains. And it is bolstered by some admissions which former Rubber Boss William Jeffers has made since his resignation.

When Mr. Jeffers returned to private life, he left the country the assurance that "the big job covered by the recommendations of the Baruch report is done." A month later, however, he conceded that the synthetic tire program was lagging by 20 per cent; that much remained to be accomplished, and that, generally speaking, everything was not in apple pie order. Technically, perhaps, these admissions do not contradict his optimistic statements about the "big job" being done. But they certainly tend to confuse a public which had naturally interpreted Mr. Jeffers' parting shot to mean that something safe, sound and solid soon would be forthcoming to replace the bits and pieces which now adorn their rims.

Mr. Edson quoted Sparks Bonnett, OPA tire rationing chief, as saying that there would be a shortage of eight million tires by the first of the year. His articles gave a detailed account of manpower shortage in synthetic tire production, of bottlenecks which expanded facilities will not relieve until the last half of 1944, of near-exhaustion of the used tire supply, and many other disquieting data.

Mr. Jeffers accused the War Production Board of inadequate flow of material to the making of holding back tire fabric. He criticized tire manufacturers for not maintaining top machine efficiencies. He pointed a finger at labor hoarding in departments not engaged in tire production.

Maybe all this does not add up to Col. Bradley's definition of a mess. Undoubtedly present difficulties will be solved with the passage of time. But meanwhile there is going to be a continuing time of critical tire shortage which can be weathered only with the complete co-operation of tire users. Issuing rose-colored glasses won't do the trick.

Motorists grumble over gasoline rationing. They multiply military consumption in one big raid by the amount Mrs. Roosevelt's plane used in going to the South Pacific, and divide it by the probable output of British oil fields in Iran. Then they send the answer with an aggrieved letter to their congressman.

But most of the disgruntled motorists' statistics are red herrings. The primary reason for gasoline rationing is that, without it, America would soon be riding on its rims. It is time that car drivers were told the whole story of tire shortage and gas rationing, plainly and repeatedly.

Paying as We Go

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau reported, on his return from the European front, that soldiers are worrying about post-war economy and the war debt. Judge Fred M. Vinson, director of Economic Stabilization, echoed this sentiment in a recent speech. Both were arguing for a greater payment of taxes now. And their arguments are hard to refute.

No one in this country, surely, wants our soldiers and sailors to fight this war and then come home and pay for it for the rest of their lives. The least that we here at home can do is to pay as much of the tremendous debt as possible while the war is going on.

Mr. Morgenthau thinks that 50 per cent current payment is about right. And we can afford to do it. Of course nobody will admit that any of this much-talked-of surplus money is in his own jeans. Yet the fact remains that after we have bought all there is to buy, purchased war bonds, paid taxes, and made payments on debts and insurance policies, a cash surplus of at least $20 billion will be floating around in 1945.

Judge Vinson quotes figures to show that our purchases of clothing, fur and jewelry, and our expenditures in eating and drinking places are all up more than 100 per cent over pre-war years. So we can afford to reduce the public debt (which is growing at $225 million a day) a little more without undue sacrifice.

Nazis guilty of atrocities will be taken for trial back to the scenes of their crimes. Hitler is going to do a lot of traveling.

Another argument for slow eating is that what you can get to chew at all these days certainly is worth chewing well.

With so many lads in the service, girls are clinging to their youth—whether he's goodlooking or not.

Italy's king may abdicate in favor of his small grandson. A 6-year-old couldn't make much more of a mess of the job.

THE ELSTERS

CHAPTER XVII

WHEN they reached the Hall house a little after one on the following morning they found the lights blazing in the lower hall and kitchen. Emily said, startled: "I wondered if anything's happened."

But, when she went in with Frank following, it was only Jim and Nancy. Nancy, in sea-green pajamas under a broadcloth coat, with bare feet thrust into mules, at the kitchen table drinking milk and eating crackers, and Jim sitting on the table.

"Home early," said Nancy, yawning, "have a good time?" "Gimme that milk," said Frank, seizing the pitcher, "and by all that's holy, do I see huckleberry pie!"

"Don't they feed you at the club these days?" asked Nancy, idly. "Watered punch," said Frank, "and sloppy sandwiches. I didn't know I was hungry." He regarded Nancy reflectively. "You look delightful," he said with extreme courtesy, "I admire that all fresco getup."

"It's hot," she explained, carelessly. "I couldn't sleep. Jimmy was called out just before midnight. I heard the telephone. So when he came in I thought he might relish a little hospitality." Jim was staring at Emily. He announced, solemnly: "I've never seen you dressed up before."

"She should make a habit of it," commented Nancy. "Looks elegant, doesn't she—Frank?"

Frank said, "I've been telling her so most of the evening, but she won't listen."

Emily smiled. She said, "I'm going to bed. . . . Thanks, Frank, for a very nice evening. Nancy, see that the lights are out and the house locked, will you?" She looked at Jim, hesitated and then asked, "Father all right?"

"Rarin' to go. He'll be back on the job Monday," said Jim, "and I'm delighted. But I hate to think how many cases he'll decide I've bungled."

Going up the stairs, her skirts gathered in her hand, Emily thought, Both of them . . . well, she's welcome to them.

SUNDAY was a dull day. Emily had promised her mother to drive with her to the nearby town of Harmouth and call upon some relatives during the afternoon. Nancy flatly refused to go. Sunday night Doctor Hall insisted upon resuming office hours. And Monday was like any other Monday, a work day.

Emily spent some time Monday morning with a new patient, a Mrs. Elster. The Elsters' doctor had called in at headquarters and given his report. They were pitifully poor, he said, since Elster was out of work. There was a 13-year-old daughter. If the V. N. A. could send a nurse in to instruct the child a little in the care of her mother?

Mrs. Elster's illness was patent. Overwork—she had been going out to do housework by the day—and undernourishment. A tricky heart and a recent bout of flu. She was a frail, small woman, with a determined chin and tired eyes. But the child, a small wisp of a creature with huge eyes, was a competent little thing.

Thirteen. She looked eleven, she was so small. Her name was Mary. She had an astonishingly deep voice. She watched Emily bathe her mother, she watched her remake the bed.

"You understand about the medicine Doctor Mannerling left?" said Emily. "If your mother feels faint, if she calls you . . . you measure it out, just this many drops in the little glass."

Mary nodded. "What are you giving her to eat?" asked Emily. "The child took her into the small dark kitchen, there was very little in the cupboards. But there was some ice in the old refrigerator and a bottle of milk. There was oatmeal, in a box, crackers in a tin, a loaf of bread, and some tins of soup."

EMILY noted the lacks, made suggestions, asked, on impulse: "Has your father tried to find work at any of the mills?" "Everywhere," said Mary. Her little head poised on a neck too thin shook solemnly from side to side. "There isn't any . . . for him," she added, pitifully.

"What can he do?" "Well, do anything," said Mary. She twisted her hands together, but kept her voice down even when the huge eyes spilled over and the small stricken sobs tore at the thin throat. "He used to be an accountant," she said, "and then he lost his job. In Lynn that was. He—he drank too much. He doesn't now. He promised me, after Mother was taken sick. He hasn't since."

Emily asked gently: "How did you find Doctor Mannerling?"

"I—just ran out on the street . . . my father was looking for work, and we didn't know anyone. The lady next door was nice but she was away. I didn't know what to do and my mother was awfully sick. So I ran out and down the street and on the next block I saw his sign."

Emily nodded. Mannerling was a good man, old, poor in means, rich in service. The neighborhood had been degenerating for years. But Mannerling had refused to move.

She gave the little girl some further instructions, promised to return the following day. After she had said goodbye to Mrs. Elster she went downstairs and to the nearest grocery where she bought the simple necessary things and had them sent immediately to the Elsters. She thought, walking to the Mannerling house. Such things shouldn't be permitted, a child that age—years older than she should be—with all that responsibility.

Fair Enough
by
WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York.—Perhaps I shouldn't mention the matter above a faint and bashful whisper for I am only a very modest operator and thus, therefore, will be just a low muffled moan, not a howl.

Last winter I interviewed several midwestern sedentary, or downtown pig farmers who reported that they were raising numerous swine on farms out in the country. They had two motives, to contribute food to the general supply and to make a few dollars, not necessarily, in the order named, and they were quite happy about their venture because, as they said, when a sow pigs she doesn't play acy-dacy with you—she pawns. Then, after you have hauled a reasonable amount of feed into the little pigs a fellow comes along and takes them away and gives you a check and, by that time, or thereabouts, the sows are at it again, and so forth.

This was cheery information to one who put a couple of rather handsome boars and an appropriate harem of sows over in the woodlot but unforeseen conditions have arisen now, which were well, if mournfully, put a few days ago by a Mr. Van Riper of Wilton, Conn., in a letter to the New York Times. Van Riper had done likewise and he now complained that with 80 hungry guests on his hands he couldn't buy feed for the same or sell the little ones at any price and was offered only 10 cents a pound for his boar and the sows which he aptly described a "producing equipment."

I suppose I should have known better for it was that way when I bought A. T. & T. and a few other little trifles. The minute the word got around Wall Street that Pegler was buying something, the big interests knocked it lopsided. Now, here I am with not 80 pigs thank goodness, but 50, no less, making perfect hogs of themselves for, unlike Van Riper's man, my feed-monger still contrives to get me some.

However, the problem is the same. If I don't feed them, they starve and the humane society will burn me down. The more I do feed them, the more I lose. And, although they would yield even now a little meat, though much less than by all that is right they presently should, I can't butcher and peddle them because that, I am told, would be a black market operation.

Meanwhile, however, there is no such abundance of pork and ham in the stores and restaurants as would justify this indifference to Van Riper's pigs and mine, and, I understand, many thousands of others. The New York restaurants today are serving the most miserable make-shifts of dough and gravy in the guise of spaghetti and patty and hash and a waiter in one of Child's places let out a howl the other night when I made a bashful request for a ham sandwich. He said they had not sold a ham sandwich in months and months.

Yet pork on the hoof is all over the place and perhaps we will have to lure it down into the swamp and shoot it, if we can get the ammunition.

But everybody is going to be smarter next year. Everybody is going to give up pigs and raise feed instead and sell it to—

I can't exactly figure out who is going to buy all that feed that all the smart people are going to raise next year instead of pigs because there will be no pigs to eat it; and as for cattle, didn't you read the other day where Henry Morgenthau is selling off his great herd of registered Jerseys and Holsteins because, as Mrs. Morgenthau said, dairying didn't pay them, and going into apples, instead? The rural New Yorker had an editorial on this, chiding Morgenthau because, it said, this means that he will be out of food production for 10 years, but he is practically obliged to make some change because under his own regulations a farm is not a farm but a clever little scheme having the color of legality if the former doesn't sincerely try to make money. He can't tell himself he is really trying if he continues a venture in which, what with the price of labor and feed, he knows he can't win.

Those midwestern downtown farmers certainly were right—worse luck about those sows giving jackpots. But so do mice. Why didn't I think of mice?

Last Flare Brings Rescue of 3 Fliers

Army officer on board a small steamer enroute to Greenland, saved them from death by starvation and exposure.

The three airmen, recuperating here, are Capt. Robert E. Coffman, 32, of Baton Rouge, La., pilot; Flying Officer Norman E. Greenway, 23, of Camrose, Alberta, navigator, and Radio Officer Ronald E. Snow, 22, of Digby, N. S.

Washington.— Democratic National Chairman Frank Walker may be replaced sometime soon by Leo Crowley, the president's receiver in bankruptcy for declining bureaus.

Crowley has a public reputation only as a banker, but he has handled as much politics for Roosevelt as any other line, being regarded in the administration, since the inauguration of the new deal, as the Democratic maestro of Wisconsin and Minnesota, if not some adjoining states.

If you see Crowley come into the Democratic managership, you will know Roosevelt is going to make a race for it next year again, despite all current political portents and the sub-rosa information passed through the Democratic side of the senate that he will not make up his mind until May 1.

Offhand, you would figure that Roosevelt would run only if he thought he could win without a nationally disunifying struggle, and if a majority were certain.

Most Democratic politicians figure it another way. They say there is no other Democratic leader acceptable to the new deal element, and also no one acceptable to Roosevelt.

Wallace was groomed and has kept the administration hearth for left-wingers burning, but not brightly. He would be a weak candidate. Ex-Justice Jimmy Byrnes would not suit the leftists. No one else has been allowed to grow up to mention.

Some southern newspapers, in editorials not nationally noticed, have been asking:

What about Byrd? Also, a Democratic senator, who made a political announcement about two weeks ago, received from the Midwest a lot of mail asking the same question. There is this about him:

A half spontaneous, half organized (locally) movement is rising in his behalf. He is the natural candidate of the south, may well become a sort of favorite son of several southern states and thus become a bulwark against the the Wallace element in the party at the next convention, if the leftists try to put over the V. P.

Furthermore, he would be acceptable to many a national Republican leader as a vice presidential candidate, though he could not, in the present booming state of Republican affairs, become a coalition candidate for first place. He could probably beat Wallace in a Democratic convention, even packed with officeholders, but not Roosevelt.

The isolated public mention of Chief of Staff General Marshall has no political backing (his popular backing is not yet measured.) But Marshall would not be acceptable to the new deal element. He is Army, has never participated in the socializing business, or in politics.

All this adds up to the new deal loyalists pressing Roosevelt into a fourth term nomination, even if prospects of his election are not

G-men and T-men may be borrowed by the senate's five-man liquor investigating committee to get its inquiry off to a fast start and break loose whisky stocks it says are being held in warehouses, giving a Mother-Hubbard's-Cupboard look to most liquor stores.

SUBSIDY SQUAWK SOUGHT—Administration backers of a subsidy plan which has appeared doomed to defeat, report they intend to prolong debate in congress with the hope that if they talk long enough and loud enough, consumers may rally to their aid and rescue the program of federal fund payments designed to keep retail prices down.

RAIL WAGES—Congress stands a good chance to have the final say in whether 1,100,000 non-operating employees of the railroads will get the eight cents an hour increase they seek. A strike vote in due to be completed within a week and some senators are pressing for a resolution which would give congressional sanction to the raise which has been approved by the carriers and the unions but disallowed by Economic Stabilizer Vinton.

Mine Negotiations
The Southern Coal Producers Association representing more than 20 per cent of the nation's bituminous tonnage, agreed conditionally to join the private owners' wage negotiations with the United Mine Workers.
"We are perfectly willing," an association spokesman said, "to participate after the War Labor Board has handed down its decision on those points that are still in question." He said his group wanted to know "just what we are talking about."
Participation by the southern organization would make the wage conference almost national in scope, considered from the standpoint of tonnage volume. However, captive mines, owned by the steel companies, have remained away from the negotiations thus far. One of the captive operators, Harry M. Moses, said he would be glad to help end the controversy when the government agencies are in accord on the effect of the Licks-Lewis agreement covering the period of government operation.

A DNE broadcast from Berlin called last night's RAF operation an "attempted mass attack." Some damage was acknowledged.
"British bomber formations flew over northwest Germany under unfavorable weather conditions." DNE said, "and attacked Berlin and a few other localities with high explosive and incendiary bombs."
British coastal observers said it took the RAF bombers more than an hour to cross the Channel on the return flight.
The German agency Transocean also reported attacks "on various places in southwestern and northern Germany," and the Vichy radio said targets in northern France likewise were hit by the RAF last night.

SUSAN ELIZABETH LAWTON (Contributed)

Susan Elizabeth Lawton was born July 30, 1942 at Dixon, Ill., the only daughter of Edward A. and Mary J. Lawton. On Palm Sunday she was given to God in holy baptism at the Methodist church. For 15 months she with her sweet and dainty ways gladdened the home of her parents and made happy those who were so close to her. On Nov. 9, 1943, she returned to God who had given her to us for a short time. She leaves to mourn her passing her parents, one brother, Edward, two grandmothers, Mrs. Mary Suits of Galesburg, Ill., and Mrs. Alice M. Lawton and a number of aunts, uncles and many other close relatives. Three of the uncles, Robert, William and Richard Suits and one aunt Lucy M. Lawton are in the service of their country. The funeral services were held from the Sugar Grove church Thursday, Nov. 11, Rev. Floyd Blewfield officiating, with burial in Palmyra cemetery.

The mists of earth are gathered thick.
Obscuring all the land;
We darkly see, through suffering
Some day will understand.
Some day we'll understand just why
Our cherished little one has died
And why in truest wisdom, God
Our fond prayers denied.
We know not why some loved one
dear
Was torn from out our hand.
We only know sometime, somewhere, some day,
We'll understand.

WHAT IS THIS—THE GESTAPO?

FOREWORD

This story speaks for itself. It is an authentic account of an incident that happened in Connecticut.

As in last month's story about "The Bureaucrat," it might happen anywhere. We fear it has happened, with variations, in many places.

Only if men and women speak out, as this woman spoke, can liberty be preserved in America.

NATIONAL ECONOMIC COUNCIL, Inc.

Mr. Samuel Grafton was broadcasting on a recent Sunday evening. Critic of the traditional American way of life, crusader for the New Deal, able writer of a column in the New York Post, contributor to the New Republic, he was extolling "Social Security." Concluding, he asked his audience for an informal poll on the question—Do you want the benefits of Social Security extended to those not yet enjoying them? In the same broadcast he advocated sending American school teachers to teach Germans democracy after the war.

Up on a small Connecticut farm a woman listened. She had been brought up in hardship, all her life had worked long hours, had traveled and lived in many lands, knew human nature—and had never leaned on anybody.

She wrote Mr. Samuel Grafton a postcard, saying that since Bismarck's time the Germans have had all the so-called social security measures now in effect, or advocated, here; that these measures were largely responsible for the German Republic's collapse; that Hitler is using them all now; and that, therefore, it would be wiser for Americans, if after conquering them, we sent American teachers to teach them this same "Social Security."

Two weeks later she was digging dandelions from her lawn, when a state police car stopped at her gate. A state trooper, uniformed and armed, walked up to her. He said that he was investigating subversive activities for the F. B. I., and asked whether anyone in her house had sent a postcard to Samuel Grafton.

She said that she had sent one. The state trooper leafed through a sheaf of papers clipped to a board, found a typed copy of the words she had written, held this before her eyes and asked sternly if she had written those words.

She said, "Yes, I wrote that. What have the state police to do with any opinion that an American citizen wants to express?"

The trooper said, more sternly, "I do not like your attitude." A furious American rose to her full height. "You do not like my attitude! I am an American citizen. I hire you. I pay you. And you have the insolence to question my attitude? The point is that I don't like YOUR attitude. What is this—the Gestapo?

The young state trooper said hastily, "Oh no, nothing like that. I was not trying to frighten you."

"You know perfectly well that your uniform and your tone would frighten a great many Americans in this neighborhood who remember the police methods in Europe. You know, or you should know, that any investigation of opinions by the American police is outrageous!"

"Oh, come now," the trooper protested. "At least give me credit for coming to you, instead of going around among your neighbors and gathering gossip about you. I only want to know whether you wrote that postcard."

"Is that a subversive activity?" she demanded.

Somewhat confused, the trooper answered, "Yes."

"Then I'm subversive as all hell!" she told him. "I'm against all this so-called Social Security, and I'll tell you why. For five minutes she told him why. 'I say this, and I write this, and I broadcast it on the radio, and I'm going to keep right on doing it till you put me in jail. Write that down and report it to your superiors!'"

"Oh no, no, I won't do that," the trooper said. "I'll report that you're a writer. If you'd signed your professional name to that postcard, I wouldn't've bothered you. Of course, if you're a writer, it's all right; you can say what you want to."

She refused this special immunity; she insisted that he report her as an American citizen; she declared again that every American citizen has a right to say what he wants to say. What the trooper reported is not known.

Who put him up to this? What is the connection between the F. B. I. and the State Police? The trooper asserted that Samuel Grafton did not turn the postcard over to the F. B. I. Then who did? Is there a censorship of American mail within our borders? If so, who is the censor? Did Samuel Grafton ever receive that postcard? If not, who is obstructing the delivery of American mail? Precisely what is happening?

Nelson

The Misses Virginia Miller and Florence Bevilacqua who are in nurses' training at St. Joseph's hospital at Aurora, were home spending the week-end with their families.

Corp. John Moeller, Ft. Riley, Kansas, is on a 15-days furlough, visiting his parents and family and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Palmer and son Bradley of Chicago spent the week-end with his parents,

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Palmer. Arthur J. Palmer and wife of New York City spent Saturday and Sunday there, also.

A very delightful party was enjoyed Monday evening at the home of Mrs. William LaFever in honor of the birthday anniversary of her mother, Mrs. Louis Bevilacqua. Cards was the diversion of the evening and a delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Bevilacqua's daughters, Miss Gilda and Mrs. William LaFever and Mrs. Oscar Witzleb. Those present, which included Dixon and Nelson friends, presented Mrs. Bevilacqua with a very fine gift.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dorosh and family attended the funeral of a relative at Shannon on Wednesday.

Mary's LISTENIN' POST

A LITTLE-publicized thing happened at St. Paul this week. Tuesday about noon the order went out that there would be an "embargo" on all livestock coming into St. Paul stockyards beginning the next day and continuing until further notice. On Wednesday it was announced that it would continue through Thursday.

THIS embargo was setup at the request of government committee which is composed of men who have had experience with livestock marketing. The coordinator for this job has his headquarters in Chicago. When the report comes from one of the big yards that there are more animals coming into the market than can be handled then an embargo may be authorized.

HOGS were the cause of the overflow at St. Paul and the reason they could not be observed was not because the run was unusual but because labor in the packing plants was so scarce that they could handle only a limited number. In fact many plants all over the country are running only one shift where they used to work three. One large concern in Chicago which normally could take care of 40,000 hogs in a 24-hour period, now can handle only 9,500.

LAST week saw the Chicago market glutted with hogs and radio appeals went out to farmers not to ship. The broadcast information was effective and the run the following day was half the original estimate. Thus, was Chicago saved from the first embargo order. In fact it is through such actions that the radio that the government hopes to control the situation but when that fails as it did around St. Paul then the order is given which stops all livestock receipts.

ONE plan to relieve the labor shortage in the packing plants has been to encourage farm boys who are deferred to go to the market points to work during the winter seasons. Their deferment would continue the same provided they would go back to the farm as soon as they were needed. (Maybe the shortage could be solved by letting some of the "political plum" meat graders whose judgment is unpredictable learn the business from the "knife" up in some of these plants where they are stationed.)

ANOTHER interesting thing happened this week in the hog price control. It seems that there were almost no "props" under the price floor and that it finally reached the place where packers were inquiring of government officials, "Just what is the penalty if I buy below the floor?" And the answer was as evasive as little Johnnie's when he hasn't read his lesson. In fact record has it that a few sales were made in the Chicago yards below the floor and NOTHING happened.

ABOUT the same time the inference was made that if the farmer didn't quit sending in so many hogs—well, how could the government support such a price? But this week it's different—the packer is the goat (and according to most sources of information he can afford to be). He must either pay the established price or else he loses some of that subsidy which has been such a golden cream in his "coffer."

THOSE who said that public markets could never be controlled—Americans just wouldn't stand for doing away with freedom of trade—were in for a rude awakening when the embargo took effect this week. Markets can be closed—and right here in America too—by government order and little was even said about it. Maybe marketing livestock by the "permit" method will develop into reality instead of being just a well planned dream as at present.

THERE is only one answer—farmers will cooperate. If they are convinced that what they are asked to do is reasonable but when they feel that the order comes from someone who doesn't know a pig from a cow except on a menu—they will follow their own judgment even to the point of violation of orders.

IT'S REALLY DRY HERE Gallup, N. M., Nov. 19—(AP)—It's so dry in the Arizona desert that a 600-foot waterfall turns into a dust cloud. Water draining from the Navajo and Hopi reservations, says J. M. Cooper and Paul Phillips, Indian Service officials, is so heavily laden with silt that it sends up a muddy spray as it pours over Grand Falls. The moisture evaporates quickly in the dry desert air, leaving particles of silt suspended in a dust cloud.

HOME FRONT PROBLEMS San Francisco—(AP)—"When the Lights Go On Again Committee" has changed its name. The new name: "When the Lights of Liberty Go On Again Committee". Relaxation of the dimout is the cause.

like a stiff for five," he ruefully admits. When O'Shea jerked sodas, he didn't just fill a glass with the right good, no sir, not O'Shea. "I jazzed it up," he says. "I swirled the ice cream spoon above my head, dropped the junk from a dizzy height to land squarely in the mug with a nice squishy sound. I squirted the fizz water and flavor with the flourish of a magician, and then I slid the glass down the counter with the fast calculatin' speed of a baseball pitcher so it landed at first base right in front of the sixth customer down the counter."

It was true, O'Shea said, that he broke a little hardware in the joint and maybe scared the digestive tracts of a few customers, but he was havin' fun showin' off and the customers came back and brought their friends to see the show he put on for a nickel cove.

"What's more," says O'Shea, "it gave me ideas for new bits in vaudeville routines, see."

COLORFUL CHARACTER As you may have guessed, Michael O'Shea is quite a character, with a flow of colorful language that is almost indescribable. He talks like a Brooklyn gangster in the movies, only with the color of Hemingway.

During another lean spell, O'Shea used the same show-off tactics as a New York bell boy. "Give a guy the works," he says. "Brush his coat, open windows for 'im, look at his suit and his luggage admirin' like, ask 'im if you can't bring him ice water or fresh towels or somethin' and see if you don't get a 15-cent tip instead of a dime."

As a bricklayer, O'Shea says, he also gave 'em a show. Tossed the trowel around and the bricks into the air. "You gotta juggle," he says. "Have fun in what you're doin' and you'll be a success."

Ask Michael O'Shea his profession and he says: "Show-off—what actor isn't?"

MIXUP Oklahoma City — (AP)—A woman who wholesales sandwiches asked for more ration points because, she said, the man who makes her chicken salad is charging her seven points a pound.

"But lady," a rationing official declared, "He can't do that. Chicken is not rationed."

"Yes, but pork is," she replied. "And in his chicken salad he uses half chicken and half pork."

Milwaukee Ordnance Plant, $22,000,000 Project, Closing Up

Milwaukee, Nov. 19 — (AP) — The Milwaukee ordnance plant, employing approximately 5,000 persons engaged in the production of 50 caliber cartridges, will be shut down soon, it was announced this week by Major Richard J. Smith, Army ordnance officer.

The plant has been operated for the government by the United States Rubber Company since August, 1942. Major Smith said it probably would take from four to six weeks to completely close it. The plant represented a government expenditure of approximately $22,000,000.

Major Robert Davis, commanding officer of the plant, told workers to continue on their jobs until notified by their foremen that their services were no longer required. Maj. Davis said local representatives of the War Manpower Commission have told him all of the employees, of which half are women, can readily be absorbed in other war industries in this area.

The notice posted by Major Davis said that "changing needs by our combat forces, plus the fact that a sufficiently large bank of finished ammunition is now accumulated, permit a reduction in the schedules of all small arm plants and releases of both men and materials for other vital war needs."
